

- Atmospheric perturbation - The «fronts» (Blue level)

«Atmospheric perturbations» are the low pressure arenas where air masses with different physical constitution encounter. Cold polar air, dry and heavy, versus warm tropical air, moist and light, create fronts around surfaces where they meet.

An image talking by itself. Here is a stormy front. A cumulonimbus heading from the sea to the land. It just finds a support on a colder and denser air.